

Increased Threshold for State Building Advisory Commission Action; HB 2395

HB 2395 increases the threshold of capital improvement costs to $1 million before the Secretary of Administration must convene a meeting of the State Building Advisory Commission to prepare a list of at least three and no more than five qualified firms to be considered for the project. Under previous law, the Commission convened when the project costs were either at least $750,000 for architectural services or $500,000 for engineering services. The bill repeals the separate threshold amounts for architectural and engineering services.
